HONOR TO DEWEY.

Every One In New York Strives to Outdo His Neighbor.

THE ARRIVAL OF HOWISON

Causes Rear Admiral Sampson to Pull Down Commander's Flag.

NO CHANGE IN THE NAVAL PARADE.

By Special Arrangement Sampson Will Command the Fleet During the Days of Celebration in Honor of the Hero of Manilla.

New York, Sept. 27.—There was a real crush in the New York hotels. Practically all of them were filled to their utmost capacity, but thousands of persons who engaged quarters weeks and months ago are arriving in the city to claim them. Other thousands who were accommodated with the understanding that they should seek other quarters will be turned out to shift for themselves.

Governors, captains of the vessels in Dewey's fleet, members of the cabinet and officers high in the navy have arrived. Quarters for all of the city's guests have been provided, but all others who come to seek rooms in the hotels will be turned away.

Governor Wells of Utah has headquarters at the Netherland. Governor Bushnell of Ohio is at the Majestic and Governor Richards of Wyoming at the Parker.

Estimates as to the number of visitors already in the city range from 600,000 to 1,000,000. Most of the railroads agree that unless weather conditions are most unfavorable there will be 2,000,000 visitors here on Friday and Saturday.

This means that the railroads and ferries will have to handle such crowds as never before. Active preparations are in progress day and night in anticipation of these conditions and the makers of all the lines declared that they did not anticipate a single hitch.

All available passenger equipment of the various railroads is being concentrated at the most advantageous terminal for bringing crowds into New York. The greatest inward movement is expected on Thursday.

An Early Riser.

Admiral Dewey rose early and could be seen from the Atlantic Highlands pacing the Olympia's quarterdeck. The warship was surrounded by all manner of sailing and steam craft, including a number of newspaper boats, which had remained near the flagship all night. An outward bound British steamer saluted as she passed. There was no answering boom of guns from the flagship, but a string of signal flags were sent aloft in response.

An official visit was paid to Admiral Dewey by Major Burbank, commanding at Fort Hancock, and his staff. The visitors were met at the gang plank and escorted to the admiral's cabin where they spent a half hour. When they returned to shore all the members of the military party were enthusiastic over their reception.

It was explained that while Admiral Dewey and Rear Admiral Howison both outranked Rear Admiral Sampson, there will be no change in the arrangements, giving Admiral Sampson full control of the naval portion of the demonstration in Admiral Dewey's honor. Rear Admiral Howison will be a guest at the ceremony, but his presence will not interfere with Rear Admiral Sampson.

Admiral Dewey's relatives, who have been staying at the Waldorf-Astoria, as the guests of the city, started on the government tug Harkeeta to pay a visit to the admiral on the Olympia.

There were 15 in the party as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey of Montpelier; W. T. Dewey, their son, James P. Dewey, son of W. T. Dewey, Charles Robert Dewey, nephew of the admiral, and his wife; Mr. J. B. Dewey and his wife; Mrs. James Martin, Mrs. H. L. Finley and Miss Frances A. Finley, Edwin Dewey, brother of the admiral, and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. F. B. McCuen, the latter a niece of Admiral Dewey.

Lieutenant Theodore Dewey was in charge of the tug from the navy yard and was aboard with his wife to meet the others of the party.

The first soldiers to arrive in the city for the Dewey celebration were the Walhall guards from Meridian, Miss., 45 men, commanded by Captain E. M. Martin. The men are paying their own way to take part in honoring the admiral. Captain Martin preceded them to hunt up accommodations during their stay. Nobody met them at the depot to welcome them, and they stacked arms while waiting for Captain Martin.

DAY IN DETAIL

Admiral Dewey Given Ovations From Dawn to Darkness.

New York, Sept. 27.—Steam and sailing craft of all imaginable sizes gathered in the vicinity of the southwest channel and swarmed around the Olympia like midgets around a light as she lay swinging gracefully with the tide.

Her string of signal lights was kept constantly changing and there was a veritable pyrotechnical display as answers were flashed across the bay to the salutations of passing ships. A searchlight from Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Erin was kept flashing around the Olympia until almost daybreak, making the cruiser stand out in bold relief to the delight of the landsmen and the gratification of the watchers on many of the vessels in the neighborhood.

Just at dawn the signal lights on the Olympia went out, and over the bay came the faint bugle notes of the reveille. Half an hour later the shrill sound of the boatswain's whistle was heard calling the men to clean ship and soon the sailor lads were seen swarming the decks with swabs and buckets, working with a will and making the pride of the navy shipshape for her trip to the anchorage off Tompkinsville.

At 6:45 the cruiser Chicago, flying the pennant of Rear Admiral Howison, passed in at the narrows and received a salute of guns from Fort Hancock. As she neared the Olympia her rapid firing guns belched forth an admiral's salute, which the Olympia returned with 13 guns, the salute for a rear admiral. As the Chicago passed close to the Olympia, Admiral Dewey, who was on the quarterdeck, returned Rear Admiral Howison's salute and shouted out a greeting. The sailors on the Olympia manned the rail and returned the hearty cheers of the Chicago's crew.

At 8 a. m. sharp colors sounded and the flag and jack were respectively posted fore and aft to the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner." The admiral stood well aft, at attention, while behind him were grouped Captain Lambert, George Dewey, Jr., and the officers and men, all at salute as the flag was slowly run up the monkey gaff.

At 8:30 a. m., the Dolphin, flying the secretary of the navy's flag, hove into sight, having on board Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, who was received with a salute. He went on board the Olympia at 8:45 and remained chatting with the admiral on the deck until the Olympia weighed anchor. When the Olympia got under way Admiral Dewey felt the cold northwest breeze that was blowing and sent an order for his cape which he wrapped around him. He wore the undress uniform in which he has been so often pictured.

When at last the Olympia started for Tompkinsville she was flanked on the right by the press tug Kuper and on the left by the tug Dilgefi and followed by the Dispatch boat Dolphin. All the way up the lower bay the signal boys were kept busy dipping the colors while the steam siren was kept tooting out thanks for the admiral to his admirers.

An Italian sailing master whose flag got entangled in the mizzen top mast, had to send a man aloft to unloose the halyards. Admiral Dewey noticed the incident and without waiting for the Italian captain to dip his colors first, had the Olympia's flag lowered and showed his appreciation by having the siren tooted thrice.

As the cruiser neared Forts Wadsworth and Hamilton, the sailors passed themselves forward, while the marines paraded the quarterdeck in full dress uniform, standing at attention, while the ensign was lowered and the ship's number was displayed. As the Olympia entered the channel, the signal corps on the forts wigwagged a welcome which was answered by the ship's signaller.

The slopes of the fort were crowded with soldiers, and as the first gun belched forth its welcome, they cheered lustily. The face of the hero of Manilla was wreathed in smiles, as his ship answered gun for gun.

A little later the cruiser joined Admiral Sampson's fleet off Tompkinsville, which thundered out its welcome to the commander-in-chief.

HOWISON'S ARRIVAL

Causes Sampson to Lower His Flag as Fleet Commander.

New York, Sept. 27.—The United States cruiser Chicago, flagship of Rear

Admiral Howison, reached this port from a long cruise during which she touched the coast of Africa and visited Port Said.

The cruiser proceeded immediately to the government anchorage off Tompkinsville, S. I., and took a position astern of the old ship Lancaster. A few moments later the blue flag on Rear Admiral Sampson's ship, the New York, was lowered and a red flag substituted, indicating that Sampson was no longer in command of the fleet here.

As the Chicago was proceeding up the lower bay, she was mistaken by the officers of the forts for the Olympia, Dewey's flagship, and an admiral's salute of 17 guns was fired.

The salute was returned by the Chicago, and was a signal for a general demonstration along the shore. Cannon were fired and small arms discharged while the ferry boats and railroad engines started a deafening chorus of whistles.

ITEMS FROM MANILLA.

Spanish Vessels Not Permitted to Collect Prisoners.

OFFER OF NATIVE WARRIORS,

General Otis Has Received a Proposition For One Thousand Macabebe Tribesmen to Fight the Tagals.

Manilla, Sept. 27.—The American authorities have declined the request of General Jaramillo, the Spanish officer, who is settling Spain's military affairs in the Philippine Islands, to send a vessel under the Spanish flag to collect the Spanish prisoners at insurgent ports as stipulated by the Filipinos on the ground that the ports are closed; that such a step, therefore, would be unlawful, and because they declined to accept the Filipino's dictation.

The authorities are ready to send an American vessel. The Spanish commission, therefore, will return to the insurgent lines and endeavor to effect an arrangement for the delivery of the prisoners to an American vessel.

Aguinaldo has issued a statement saying the warlike activity of the Americans had prevented the concentration of the prisoners as intended, but that they will be delivered up October 19.

The Tagals of the island of Mindanao have expressed their readiness to accept American sovereignty in exchange for protection against the harassing Moros.

A native officer has offered Major General Otis 1,000 Maccahebe tribesmen to fight Tagals of the Laguna De Bay district. The troops engaged in the fighting at Cebu belonged to the Nineteenth Infantry, Sixth Infantry, Twenty-third Infantry and Sixth Artillery.

Burned to Death.

Elderfield, Ind., Sept. 27.—Fire at Buckskin, a small village on the Evansville and Indianapolis railroad, completely destroyed the farmhouse of Michael Witse. His two sons, 8 and 11, and a young man named Grice, 17, who had been employed by Witse for some time, were sleeping in the second story of the building. All three boys were cremated. Witse and his wife were sleeping in the first story and awoke in horror to see their house on fire, and hot for timely action would have also perished in the flames. Nothing was seen of the young boys.

Joined the Revolutionists.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Sept. 27.—Generals Marcano and Ron, who have been in command of the government forces in the state of Barcelona, Venezuela, have joined the revolutionists with all of their arms. The revolutionists under General Mata attacked the coast guard at Rio Carite. A gunboat was captured with a loss of four men killed and two wounded.

No More Football.

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 27.—The athletic association of the Middletown high school has passed a resolution that no more football games shall be played this season. Games already scheduled have been cancelled. This action is due to the death of Thomas Kelly, a member of the football team, who died at Meriden hospital from injuries received in a game.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 27.—The officials of the British warship Leander, which returned from Esquimalt from a cruise in South American waters, reports that volcano on Jamaica Island, one of the Galapagos group, became very active about three months ago, sending broad streams of lava down its sides. No damage was done as the island is uninhabited.

BRICK BUILDING BURNED.

Three Firemen Overcome by Smoke and Others Injured.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—A large five-story brick building in Filbert street, the first two floors of which are occupied by the Macey Furniture company and the three upper floors by the Reliance Storage and Warehouse company, was entirely destroyed by fire, together with its contents. The loss is estimated at about $100,000. The building and stock of Henry Maule, wholesale dealer in seeds, adjoining the structure, were damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars. Two firemen received minor injuries and three others were overcome by smoke, but soon recovered.

American Horses For Transvaal.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—American horses will drag English ammunition wagons and heavy artillery over the plains of the Transvaal in the event that Great Britain and the Boers clash at arms. Orders came from London by cable to a firm of horse dealers at the Union stock yards to buy up all the 1,200-pound "gunners" the western market afforded and make arrangements for immediate shipment. Stress was laid upon the fact that the animals were wanted for the impending South African campaign and the commission was marked "rush" and "imperative."

Severe Storms In India.

Calcutta, Sept. 27.—The great storm of Sunday and Monday which caused destructive landslides and floods, gather at the head of the bay of Calcutta and then moved north, giving heavy rain in Calcutta, Dinajpur, Rangpur and Jaiparguri. Its greatest fury was felt at Darjeeling. Simultaneously another storm gathered at Rangpur and passed westward from Purnea to Monghyr. The usual weekly reports have not been received by the government, and there is reason to fear that the district named is flooded and communication interrupted.

Opening at Middleport.

Middleport, O., Sept. 27.—A heavy rainstorm prevented the outdoor meeting here, during which Senator Hanna, Judge Nash, General Grosvenor and Colonel Robert Nevin spoke at the opera house. Senator Hanna was first introduced and the crowd broke loose with deafening cheers. His speech was listened to with rapt attention. Judge Nash addressed the audience for more than an hour, and was enthusiastically received. General Grosvenor and Colonel Nevin also spoke. The same speakers later addressed a large meeting at Pomeroy, O.

The Carter Case.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Attorney General Griggs gave a hearing to Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, counsel in the case of Captain O. M. Carter, of the army. Mr. MacVeagh asked for a judicial hearing in the case, saying that if the president affirmed the proceedings he would be guilty of an act of great cruelty and wrong. The record was, he contended, so saturated with errors of law that it is impossible in court governed by law to affirm the finding.

Massmeeting Dispersed.

Havana, Sept. 27.—Owing to the police breaking up the meeting, which had been called by the general committee of the labor union for the purpose of deciding whether a general strike should be ordered, the question has not yet been settled. Those who had organized the meeting had failed to give the authorities the requisite 24 hours' notice, as required by law, and the 2,000 men who had assembled were therefore dispersed.

Three Days In Open Bouts.

St. Johns, N. F., Sept. 27.—The schooner Lily of the West, from Labrador, with 30 persons aboard and 500 quintals of codfish, struck an iceberg of the straits of Belle Isle, sinking almost immediately. The crew managed to escape, but were three days in the boats before they were rescued. All hands suffered severely from want of food and drink. They were picked up by a passing vessel.

A Railroad Wreck.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27.—Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train No. 1 ran into an open switch near White Sulphur Springs and struck a freight standing on the siding, damaging both engines. Robert Garrett, a tramp, was killed. Colonel N. August, a passenger, sustained a broken leg. It is believed the switch was maliciously tampered with.

An Insult to Veterans.

Kansas City, Sept. 27.—"No greater insult was ever offered the comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic than that action of the Dewey Day committee in New York, when 2,000 white-haired old soldiers were not allowed a place of honor in the great parade," said Albert D. Shaw, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.

OFFICERS FOR FRONT

Are Said to Have Been Appointed by Transvaal Government.

EFFORTS OF AN AMERICAN

To Raise a Regiment of Men For the Boers Is Reported From South Africa—Another English Steamer Chartered.

London, Sept. 27.—The Transvaal situation remains unchanged, though if anything, the feeling of gloom deepened.

Cablegrams from Pretoria and Cape Town show that the general impression prevails there that the Boers will not recede from their position, and that feeling of unrest at Pretoria has been intensified. A dispatch announces that the Transvaal government has begun to appoint officers to go to the front in case of hostilities.

The executive council of the Transvaal had a prolonged sitting and has been in constant telegraphic communication with the Orange Free state. No decision, it is said, regarding the attitude of the Free state has yet been reached.

The Transvaal's reply to the dispatch to the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, will be drafted at once and submitted to the raid in secret session. The members appear convinced that Great Britain is determined on war. Being anxious not to force Great Britain's hand, the Boer will not take any definite steps until the draft of their reply is considered; but notice has been issued to the burghers to be in readiness for commanding which commences shortly. A quantity of arms, chiefly Martini rifles, have been distributed.

A telegram from Johannesburg says an American named Blake is raising an American corps of 500 men for the Boers.

The camp at Dundee now consists of two regiments of infantry, a hussar regiment, two field batteries, one mountain battery and a detachment of engineers.

The King's Rifles are now encamped at Ladysmith and the Fifth Lancers are arriving there.

The Currie Line has just received an order from the admiralty to prepare the Birkenhead Castle, of that line, to sail for the cape October 6, with 1,400 officers and men. This is an entirely fresh batch of troops and the composition of it is not known.

In spite of these warlike preparations South African circles in London still believe there will be no war and that the Boers will finally concede the British demands.

Chairman Trans Resigns.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Charles Truax resigned as chairman of the general committee of the Fall festival association. He issued the following open letter: "As it has been stated by the press and by those representing the labor organizations of this city that said labor organizations will heartily co-operate to contribute to the success of all the features of our October celebration, provided I will resign my office as president of your committee, I deem it to be my duty to meet this emergency, which I now do by tendering to you without reserve my resignation as your chief executive officer."

The Briggs Case Again.

New York, Sept. 27.—The annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal church of the diocese of New York began here in the church of the Incarnation. Bishop Potter presided. The convention promises to have some very interesting features, notably that of the election of the standing committee. This committee recommends the applicants for ordination into the Protestant Episcopal ministry. The present committee is that which recommended the ordination of the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, over whose ordination there was so much discussion.

Injured by Powder Explosion.

Logansport, Ind., Sept. 27.—Five men were injured, two seriously, by the explosion of a keg of powder in a fire that destroyed Cline Brothers' hardware store. The three-story brick building was half consumed when the fire reached the powder and the explosion that followed furnished the destruction. The loss is estimated at $50,000, with little insurance.

Balles, Or., Sept. 27.—News has been received here of a tragedy which occurred about 40 miles from here when Mrs. W. T. Guyton drowned herself and her two children, a boy of four years and a girl of one and one-half years, in the Des Ch

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Governor,
WILLIAM GOEBEL.
Lieutenant-Governor,
J. C. W. BECKHAM.
Attorney General,
R. J. BRECKINRIDGE.
Auditor,
GUS COULTER.
Treasurer,
S. W. HAGER.
Secretary of State,
BRECK HILL.
Superintendent of Public Instruction,
HARRY McCHESNEY.
Commissioner of Agriculture,
ION B. NALL.
Representative,
JOHN W. ALEXANDER.
Road Commissioner,
A. W. HAMILTON.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR KENTUCKY—Fair and warmer Thursday; and showers Friday; much cooler; southerly shifting to westerly winds.

GOEBEL is a man full of dangerous stuff. A few days ago he said: "They tell me that the Republicans have been talking of Winchester rifles on election day. We have heard talk like that before. Democrats have always taken care of themselves. If they don't do it during the coming election it will be their own fault." By Republicans Goebel means the entire opposition. He is quick to suggest violence and bloodshed to back up his infamous election law. He has had more to say of rifles than any other speaker.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It seems impossible for Republicans to be just and fair in their criticisms. Republican speakers were the first to suggest violence and bloodshed and rifles and shotguns and all such stuff. They are the ones who are disgracing the State, by their wild and inflammatory talk.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

With the opening of the public schools there is a renewed manifestation of interest in the public library, which for a number of years has proved a valuable auxiliary to public education in this place. All thoroughly trained teachers appreciate the help which they and their pupils derive from this source. Every year the collection becomes more valuable from an educator's point of view. During the past year, the Library Committee, of which Mr. Henry L. Newell is Chairman, has made a number of interesting and important additions to the collection of reference books which have been found so useful in the practical work of the schools, and arrangements are making for equally valuable additions in the near future.

The efficient and indefatigable custodian, Mr. W. D. Hixson, is arranging to make some very necessary repairs (to the roof, windows, cases, etc.), and a small fund has already been provided for that purpose.

Do You Like to Laugh?

If so, for laughing purposes alone "A Bell Boy" which comes to the Washington Opera House Saturday night is well worth seeing. It is said to be excruciatingly funny, replete with witty dialogue and laughable situations, interspersed with the newest, brightest music. It is also promised that although the fun runs fast and furious, and you laugh until tears run down your cheeks, there is not a single feature or word used that could be interpreted by the most fastidious as approaching the vulgar. The artists of such worth as are ensembled in the cast of "A Bell Boy," do not have to stoop to the unclean to raise a laugh or to gain applause. Saturday night, September 28th, the date. Tickets on sale at Nelson's.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and I thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at J. Jas. Wood's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.

London, Sept. 27.—The Times prints a dispatch from Cork which says there is much indignation among the fishermen and exporters on the south and west coasts of Ireland at the appearance of American fishing boats, "which compete unfairly with the local men."

LIEUTENANT J. P. HARBOUR, who came home from Manila some weeks ago on a furlough, has been detailed to do recruiting service and ordered to report at Philadelphia for duty.

BIG DAMAGES WANTED.

Mr. Alfred Forman, formerly of Minerva, Sues Prominent Louisvillians for $25,000 for Defamation of Character.

LAGRANGE, Ky., Sept. 25.—The filing of a $25,000 damage suit here this afternoon recalls the sensational assault made upon Rev. Douglas Forrest at Pee-wee Valley several months ago. The plaintiff in the suit is Mr. A. Forman, keeper of the Pee-wee Valley Inn, who was accused of the assault.

The defendants who are charged with defamatory of character are among the most prominent citizens of Pee-wee Valley and Louisville. Among them are Judge Sterling B. Toney, of the Common Pleas division of the Circuit Court, Attorney Upton Muir and Alderman Hector Dunney. The defendants are said to have participated in a mass meeting which condemned Forman for the assault, and the members of which are said to have threatened him unless he left the place.

The case is still fresh in the minds of the residents of Pee-wee Valley. Rev. Forrest, who is sixty-three years of age, was chastised by Forman, who claimed the minister had been abusing his wife. Forrest's friends were indignant over the matter and prosecuted the case in the courts. The mass meeting was held to condemn the attack.

Forman claims that what he did was justifiable. The action of the mass meeting has injured his character, he claims, and has also resulted in harm to his business.

KENTUCKY CROPS.

Weekly Bulletin of Weather Bureau—Tobacco Yield Reported Light—Corn Out of Danger From Frost.

Cool, dry weather prevailed until Sunday night when general rains occurred. The rain was quite light in the western portion of the State, but moderately heavy in the Central and Eastern sections. Some very light frosts are reported during the week, but no damage resulted.

The rain will be a great benefit, as the drought had become very severe; water was very scarce for stock and many wells were dry.

The sowing of winter wheat, which had generally been delayed by the dry weather, will now progress rapidly.

The tobacco crop is nearly all cut and housed. The yield is rather light, but the crop has been secured in good condition.

Corn has ripened rapidly and cutting is progressing well. There is now very little danger from frosts.

A very good crop of sorghum is now being cut and ground. Irish potatoes in most sections are very poor, but sweet potatoes are generally reported to be very good. Apples are almost a failure in most localities.

Pastures are in very bad condition, due to the protracted drought.

WEDDED AT WINCHESTER.

Marriage of Prof. C. J. Nugent, Jr., of Campton and Miss Margaret Pollock, of Germantown.

[Winchester Democrat.]

A beautiful and impressive ceremony was the wedding at 7:30 a. m., Saturday morning September 23d, of Prof. C. J. Nugent, Jr., and Miss Margaret Pollock, of Germantown, at the residence of Prof. B. T. Spencer. Rev. C. J. Nugent, father of the groom, officiated, assisted by Rev. Geo. S. Savage, and only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present.

The bride was attired in a dark traveling suit with white satin trimmings and carried Bride roses and carnations.

The groom is well known here where he attended Kentucky Wesleyan College, graduating with the honors of his class in 1897. Immediately after his graduation he accepted the chair of Latin and Greek in the new academy at Campion, which position he has filled ever since.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Pollock, of Germantown, Mason County, and is an exceedingly bright and lovable young lady. She is an accomplished musician and has had charge of the musical department of Campion Academy for some time.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal couple left for Campion where they will reside.

KILLARNEY.

Rev. A. T. Ennis Tells of the Beautiful Lakes and rugged Mountains,

And of His Journey Through England and Ireland—Noted Places Visited On His Trip.

[Correspondence of the BULLETIN.]

CORK, IRELAND, September 11th, 1899.
Before leaving Paris I made some geographical studies of Western Europe, supplemented by metaphysical considerations on the subject of time and space, calling also to my aid the positive sciences in regard to the equation between distance and the relative power of steam to overcome it. Time was pressing and I clearly saw that to cover the ground previously mapped out a race had to be run on the strictest principles of geometrical precision. The theory was soon reduced to practice. I entered England by Dover and soon found myself in London. Every body has heard of this vast city and the wonders it contains. Having to move on with the same rapidity of that peripatetic gentleman, whose doom is to walk till time shall be no more, I repaired at once to the celebrated St. Paul's, looming gloriously from the Loudon Bridge. It is a majestic temple, but not so imposing as Westminster Abbey, where I spent some hours among the sculptured tombs of the Queens and Kings of England, clustered around the sepulchre of Edward the Confessor. A sacred hush seemed to pervade the place, broken only by the footstep of few visitors. Henry VIII., Elizabeth, Mary and the unfortunate Queen of Scotland slept their last sleep, undisturbed by the flight of centuries. Hands that once wielded the scepter have crumpled to dust, and heads that wore a crown are now resting easy, pillow'd on the cold stone. Knights and ministers of state keep silent vigil around their former princes and sovereigns. The history of England is carved in marble under the roof of this Minster. In the transcripts and along the aisles monuments have been raised over the last remains of the nation's scholars, soldiers and statesmen. A plain slab with the words "W. E. Gladstone" marks the spot where the memory of the great man will be immortalized in the near future by a mausoleum commensurate with his fame. The House of Parliament, close by to the church, looks like a fortified citadel in whose fastness the liberty of the British people is jealously defended by their chosen champion. A short drive brought me to the Tower; the historic building is gloomy and awe-inspiring. Passing under its massive gates and walking through its frowning halls, the tragedies and scenes of the past become new in the light of the present. Many human hearts had experienced the pangs of anguish in this abode and keen despair ere death came to their relief. I was glad to revisit the glimpses of the sun and walk in the bright, free air again.

The picture gallery in Trafalgar Square is very fine and artistically arranged, though in some respects inferior to many others I have seen. The British Museum is truly wonderful. It is rich in ethnographic curiosities of every kind, collected from every quarter of the globe.

The excavations of Babylon, Greece, Rome, and Egypt have contributed their wealth to make this treasure house the glory of the world. Among the ancient manuscripts I noticed a copy of the Bible in Greek dating from the fifth century. It is called the Codex Alexandrinus. In the Vatican library in Rome there is also a well preserved manuscript copy of the Bible older than the one I admired in London, for it dates from the fourth century, and is known among scholars as the Codex Vaticanus. In the same hall are kept the autograph letters signed by the Plantagenets, Tudors and Stewarts of old England. Among the literary papers and other original works, Walter Scott, Dickens and Goldsmith are prominent. Mine was the privilege to read Grey's Elegy in his own beautiful handwriting. Long did I linger among those valuable documents and literary curiosities.

Time was pressing, and to renew my acquaintance with the city I rode through the principal streets on the top of those conveyances called "omibuses." The Fleet, the Strand, Oxford, Holborn and Ludgate rival the boulevards of Paris from a standpoint of vastness, if not of beauty. The Crystal Palace is magnificent.

The provincial cities of England have a uniform appearance. Stopping here and there to see an old Cathedral or a mediaeval castle, I reached the Western coast and crossed over to Ireland—the emerald gem washed by the blue waves of the Atlantic. I began my tour of the country with Belfast, a large town adorned with many stately buildings. After a brief visit I started in a southward direction till I reached Dublin. Many are the attractions that here claim the attention of a sight-seer. The Castle is a dignified structure wearing the trappings of royalty. I took a special delight in going through the various buildings of Trinity College. In the chapel the guide pointed out to me the pulpit in which Dean Swift used to preach. At the head of Lakeville street there is a fine monument of Daniel O'Connell.

Christ's Church and St. Patrick's Cathedral are fine ecclesiastical edifices. The Dublin Bay impressed me as a dainty bit of marine beauty. Racing still further south I reached Wicklow whence I had a pleasant ride on a real Irish cart to Ovoca. The song about that smiling valley where the sweet waters meet is not a poet's dream but a reality. Not far from the place St. Patrick landed, and having been driven back by the natives directed his course to the north. From Ovoca to Gorey in Wexford County the distance is far is short. The Rev. Father Redmond and his curate extended to me true Irish hospitality. The country around is beautiful, the little farms being well kept and excellently tilled. The people lead a quiet comfortable life and are in easy conditions. There seems to be a feeling of satisfaction pervading through the different classes. Existence is not undermined by a fever that knows at the vitals of nations whose only aim is the accumulation of wealth. The span between the cradle and the grave is too short to employ all the energies of the mind in a direction that excludes tranquility and peace. Accompanied by my reverend friend I visited the estates and ancestral home of Sir Thomas Esmonde, a descendant of one of the noblest families of Ireland. Sir Thomas' mother was a daughter of Henry Grattan. At present he is a member of Parliament; in the interest of the Irish cause many journeys have been undertaken by him to Australia and America. Travelling through the world this statesman and scholar has made a rich collection of most valuable articles intelligently arranged within the spacious halls of his manor house. Precious palutings of Domenichina, Tlortetto and Veronese hang on the walls. A beautiful chapel is situated at the east end where mass is said.

This library is furnished with many books and as I sat in an easy chair and looked at the well filled shelves the delights of the student's life became more plain to me. In the limits of the same parish Sir George Errington, another descendant from an old Catholic family, is lord and possessor of a grand park and mansion. The grounds are beautifully laid out, the cost of the whole establishment amounting to over twenty thousand pounds a year. Both these titled gentlemen and their wives attend church in a very simple manner at Gorey. The gates of their parks and the doors of their homes are always opened to priests and sisters. From all I could see few traces are left of the old animosities once existing between landlords and renters. Some feeling still exists, but a better understanding obtains all over the country. I was shown the celebrated district where some years ago the "Plan of Campaign" was inaugurated on Croghan estates. Hundreds of tenants who refused to pay him exorbitant rents, were evicted, and scattered around in open fields and common to keep any man from settling on the land vacated by them. Soldiers were employed and the district put on the appearance of a military camp. The landlord succeeded in finally arranging matters to the satisfaction of all parties.

Having passed few days in Gorey, I proceeded to Enniscorthy, a quaint little town dominated by "Vinegar Hill." I went up to the summit and reviewed the field on which the famous battle of 1798 was fought. From that eminence could be seen the ruins of the McMurrough's Castle, one of the royal seats of the old kings of Ireland. From Enniscorthy I went to New Ross, the ancient seat of the diocese of Wexford County. On the following morning I had a pleasant trip on the Black Water river, and before reaching Waterford on the left bank I saw resting in silent majesty the ruins of the famous Dunbrody Abbey. Waterford and Limerick are good towns with clean streets and houses built in a peculiar shape. The people are very fond of flowers, which bloom profusely in little gardens surrounding the main entrance even to the poorest houses. At last I found myself at Killarney. Who has not heard of its beautiful lakes and rugged mountains—the Kerry Mountains. I have seen Switzerland, but there is nothing in Europe or America as beautiful as the country around this city. The lakes of Killarney are three in number, around whose peaceful shores rise immense mountainous covered with gigantic trees. Vegetation at once robust and graceful fringes the enchanting districts. The tender grace of wood and water is set in a framework of hills now stern now ineffably gentle. The final, the deepest impression of Killarney is that of beauty, which puts on at times a garb of grandeur and look of awe. Every morning excursion parties are formed at various hotels for the purpose of examining in detail the charms that nature has so prodigally bestowed on this favored spot. Having duly entered my name as a member of the brotherhood, an early start was made for the Gap of Dunloe. The route lies along the Northern side of the lower lakes for about six miles which distance was covered on the regulation Irish cart. Having arrived at "Kate Kearney's Cottage" the exquisite mountain scenery came into full view. Here a plentiful supply of ponies was in attendance. I hired one which I mounted with all the dignity of a Kentucky gentleman. The man wanted to hold the animal by the bridle, but I told him to walk ahead, and the ascent was begun. Magnificent and picturesque it was.

This wild gap runs between two mountains, the Carranualt, 3,412, and the Purple, 2,730 feet high. On either side the craggy cliff are suspended fearfully over the narrow pathway and at every step threaten destruction the adventurous explorer. In the interstices of these immense fragments, shaded by few shrubs and trees, waterfalls, like slender threads of silver, rush down on the luxuriant heather. A rapid stream called the Lee traverses the whole length of the glen, expanding itself at different points into fine lakes. The part of the glen which challenged my admiration is that where the valley becomes so contracted as scarcely to leave room between the precipitous sides of the scanty path and its accompanying strand. The guide gave the word of warning, which awoke the echo from among the solid walls of the mountains. The scene and the impression made by it beggars description. From the gap the pony and I issued into the Black Valley, and the shores of the Upper Lake were reached. A small boat carried the whole party across the water. Genuinely did it glide out on the crest of the laughing waves, the ride being intensely romantic and perfectly beautiful. Not being able to see the outlets, the illusion of being land-locked seemed nearly complete. At a point where the waters of one lake flow into the other through a narrow strait, regular "rapids" are formed. The boatmen shoot them with a good deal of coolness. Being asked how I liked the daring deed, I tried to explain to the children of Erin how we do things at the Lagoon in summer by trying the "chuto" at ten cents per tumble. Having passed through the Middle and Upper Lakes landing was effected at the Castle of Ross, which was the last one in Ireland to surrender to Cromwell. The day had been well spent in climbing, riding and sailing. Good things, as a rule, sharpen the appetite for a little more. The next morning I engaged the good services of a cart driver, whom I directed to show me the principal points of interest all along the shores. The man brought me to the ruins of the Muckross Abbey, founded in the thirteenth century. Dismantled walls, Gothic windows and broken columns, around which the ivy has twined its branches, covered the ground. Sitting on an old tomb, in which some monk had slept these many centuries, I mused on the course of events and the history of the past. I visited the celebrated Colleen Bawn rocks and Dinis Island. I saw again the Tor Mountain and the Druid's Circle. Some names have escaped me and I have forgotten some details, but the impression of Killarney and its lakes and mountains will live forever in my memory as a panorama of stern grandeur and touching beauty. I intended to go to Cork by rail, but a chance friend told me that a forty-four mile ride through the mountains to Glengarriff should by no means be missed. I did not hesitate, and on the third day, taking a seat on top of a rough but strong looking coach, I set my face for that wild place. The jolting was something terrible, and full many a time I came into imminent danger of going overboard, but the magnificent scenery with which I was regaled repaid me with double interest for the trouble. The road lies along side of steep mountains and over slender bridges. From summit to base rocks and stones are flung together in strange confusion; but the roughness is relieved by a variety of foliage, shrubs and ferns. Right ahead of this narrow pass stands the Glengarriff Bay, broad, deep and tranquil. I reached the place at 5:30 p.m. after a ride of more than ten hours. Chief among the fair isle the rocky garnish stands foremost in size and position, crowned with a picturesque fort and beside it a martello tower. The following morning I went to Bantry and thence to Cork. The earliest notice of this city dates from the beginning of the seventh century. In time it became a populous trading town. Up to the last century some of the principal streets were intersecting channels of the river Lee. It must have been the Irish Venice. At present Cork presents the appearance of a large, modern city, alive with commerce and busy people.

St. Mary's Cathedral is a massive church. The steeple is of unique construction, two of its sides having been built of limestone and two of red stone. In it are the Bells of shandon so justly celebrated for their sweetness of tone. Not far off being Blarney Castle, I went there to pay my respects to the world-famed stone and—everybody knows that the visitor must be lowered head downwards to enjoy the advantages of kissing it as a specific for the acquisition of a certain virtue. The genesis of the Blarney legend is evolved from the times of Queen Elizabeth. In this remote part of Ireland once upon a time an Irish chief by name McCarthy dwelt in the fortified castle of Blarney. The law directed that every lord should make a formal transfer of his lands to the Crown to receive them back from the Sovereign as a feudal concession. Now whenever the intimation was made to this independent warrior to comply with the law his diplomacy knew how to put off the royal emissaries with sweet words and fair promises. This line of action did not suit the Queen. A peremptory order was issued, summoning McCarthy to appear at once at the English Court. The lord dictated in response a long epistle expressing his love for the dear and gracious Elizabeth, assuring her that in the near future he would avail himself of the honor and privilege of paying her a visit and of kissing the hand of his good mistress. The fiery daughter of Henry VIII lost her temper and exclaimed, "This is Blarney all over." The rest is plain.

In reading this letter over I realize that I have not been able to do justice to the subject. I wish that mine were the poet's pen; then I could rival Moore in praising the beauty of the green hills and valleys of Ireland, and of extolling the grandeur of her mountains whose summits tower to the very sky motionless and silent as a nun in adoration rapt. I feel the satisfaction, however, of having given a realistic translation of my impressions such as were evoked in my mind by the voice of Nature heard in Killarney through the rustling of the leaves, the murmur of the waters and the echo of the rocks. And now I must finally lay aside my pen to grasp again for a short period the pilgrim staff, for the sands of time are running fast.
